

Episode Synopses for February 2022

Feed Date	Episode #	Synopsis
02.10.22	IV-119	When a career con artist gets away with scamming car buyers out of thousands of cash, Inside Investigations leads a crusade to put the car thief behind bars. And when a family decides to put in a pool, problems with the contractor nearly pull the plug on the project. See what Inside Investigations does to make sure the project stays afloat. Plus, a death leads to a discovery of a century old insurance policy and renews one family's faith in their community.
02.17.22	IV-120	For parents of children with special needs, a canine companion can provide independence and security. So, imagine investing a small fortune in a service dog for your child's future, then finding out it's a fraud. Inside Investigations travels to North Carolina to confront the delinquent dog trainer and speak to parents who lost thousands of dollars. Plus – and when a shady lender tries to foreclosure on a family home, Inside Investigations exposes the lender and then beats them at their financial game.
02.24.22	IV-121	When a you earn a prize by doing everything right, it's wrong when the loser changes the rules. Inside Investigations calls out a used car dealer on a promotional contest designed to draw customers in, while leaving others out to dry. Plus, if a contractor highjacks your sewer line and refuses to reconnect unless he gets paid thousands– what can you do?
03.03.22	IV-122	In this nation, doctors and dentists, must take the Hippocratic oath, a promise to uphold specific ethical standards in the care of patients. Those standards of care are overseen by a state government appointed board, whose purpose is to serve and protect public health. While it's a well-intentioned practice, Inside Investigations uncovers that all too often, instead of looking out for patients, many industry health boards exist to protect their own. And doing business with friends is never a good idea – but it becomes down right damaging to the home of a teacher who hires a former student to fix her roof – see how Inside Investigations nails the contractor and makes it right for the homeowner.