11.04.21	#RSR-109	Starter Home Reset Ginger and Scott Millheim bought their “starter” home twenty years ago when they married. They’ve raised their two boys here, but always intended to move to a bigger house in the same neighborhood. When they can’t find anything they like as well as their current house, they decide to renovate and make it their forever home. They struggle to live in the house during construction, but the end result blows everyone away.
11.11.21	#RSR-110	Boy’s Bedroom 12 year-old Lucas is growing up and out of his current room. As a middle schooler, he needs more room for clothes storage, as well as a place to hang with his friends. He negotiates with his mom on a few key items and heads into the workshop to help build a custom barn door. The bathroom also gets a functional and run refresh, which ties in perfectly to the stylish touches in the new bedroom.
11.18.21	#RSR-111	Upscale Overhaul The Reese family is thrilled when they get a great deal on a 6,000 square foot home in a gated community. With three active children, they decide to start the renovation and put their current home on the market. All goes according to plan, until they sell sooner than expected, and find themselves living in the construction dust.
11.25.21	#RSR-112	Siesta Sand Castle Mike Holderness has lived on Siesta Key his whole life and has always admired a 1940s era property that’s just steps from the white sand beach. When it pops up on the market, he buys it and hires a construction crew to renovate the kitchen and main living area, as well as build a new balcony and roof-top entertaining space. Between avoiding thunderstorms and working in slippery sand, the team has their work cut out for them.
12.02.21	#RSR-113	Kid-Free Master Suite Tat and Nicole Granata have been gradually renovating the home they share with their four children over the course of several years. The last project is the master suite on the second floor. Their goal is to turn the 1980s space into a sleek, modern retreat that’s just for them. Needless to say, living in a construction zone with four active kids proves challenging.
